Abstract:

The current educational system in Serbia is in a transition period. In this paper will be shortly present two issues: need for E learning in modern society and some theoretical principle of electronic education. The main objective is increasing quality and efficiency of education. This paper explains and systematize the definition and structure for E learning. In order to be able to accomplish its primary role, the school has to follow the changes in the society, and sometimes even to be ahead. As a significant society institution, the school is daily exposed to different expectations and pressures from both, inside and outside. Each effort to describe an existing state in education is facing the fact that it is a mix of some old patterns of behaviour and some new models of educational practice, which are in the phase of forming. Also, everything is illustrated through the project Distance Learning at the our Faculty.
